CHATTANOOGA. August 19 .- Nearly a thousand armed men, under fearless leaders, now face the angry miners and fights are reported on all sides. Railroad men tell various stories of carnage and battle. Captain Keiler Anderson, commanding Coal Creek, is still a captive, and will be held as hostage by the miners. Carnes swears to liberate the Captain, and the men will fight to the death for him. A special received this afternoon says that the miners are withdrawing before the troops and posses. The force of men now in the field in command of General Carnes is composed of men of rare nerve and pluck, and they can be depended upon in any emergency.

CHATTANOOGA, TENS., August 19.—Terror has succeeded excitement and the streets are crowded with people, who are anxiously scanning the bulletins without heed of the fast-falling rain. The riot-bell is again ringing and a call is made for 2,000 more men to go to the aid of the fighting soldiers and citizens. So conflicting are the reports from the scane of action that no definite inforthe scene of action that no definite infor-mation can be given. It is known that the Bybt is on and with spirit, but no one can give any details. The fate of Captain An-derson is the anxiety of the people, who fear that he has been lynched by the mob. A private in the Murfreesboro company was accidentally killed at Clinton and his re-mains will be shipped home to-day. Strong reinforcements are being formed at the KNONVILLE, TENN., August 19.—Reports received here are that 150 soldiers whipped 8,000 miners at Coal Creek yesterday, it is said that tweive miners are dead and nearly twenty wounded. The fight began yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A committee of miners waited on General Anderson yester-day and asked him to surrender. A few minutes before 2 o'clock the miners began the attack. There were three thousand of them, armed with all sorts of weapons. The return fire was ordered by General Anderson and a blaze of fire from every side of the fort belend out. Some every side of the fort belend out. were killed outright and many wounded.

TWELVE MINERS KILLED. At the stockade they stopped and men clambered over the walls to release the convicts. The tort is some distance from the stockade and higher up. The doors and entrances were thrown open, and the miners were at last in possession. They began to order the convicts to leave, and had them order the convicts to leave, and had them all captured, when General Anderson assembled all his soldiers at the side the miners were on, and moving the howitzer to that side, began to bombard them. The miners stopped in the work of releasing the convicts, and turned to get out of the way of the heavy fusilade of rifle bullets. Again and again their leaders begged them to fight, but they rushed down the hill to escape the furious onslaught of the soldiers.
With never a halt and never arally they reached the bottom of the hill, bearing twelve dead and more than twenty wounded miners with them. They hurried far out of the sight and reach of the guns. They then collected their shattered and wounded forces, and it is feared that there are more ANOTHER VICTORY FOR THE TROOPS, CLINTON, TENN., August 13.—General Carnes, at the head of the Chattanoga contingent, reached here at 8 o'clock last night. He was warned that dynamite had been placed on the track, and he disembarked his men. formed them in columns and started on the march to Coal Creek. The night was dark, and the road wound through the heavy timbers. Five miles east of Cliaton the advance skirmishers of General Carnes' force heard voices in the timber and, challenging, were answered with a volley, which seemed to be all around them. No one was hit, and the skirmish line fell back on the main body, which was now rapidly advancing. The firing increased, but the militiamen stood to their work like veterans. In ten minutes the miners were in full retreat, carrying with them several dead. Four of their dead were left behind them in the underbush. General Carnes' casualties amounted to General Carlies of the names four dead and six wounded. The names were not obtained, as the men were placed in improvised ambulances and taken forward on the march to Coal Creek.

BRINGING IN THE DEAD,

The Slain Soldiers Reach Knoxville, Description of the Battle,

KNOXVILLE, TENN., August 19.-At 7 o'clock a train bringing the bodies of three volunteers who were killed in the battle at Coal Creek this morning, three who were wounded and 125 volunteers who went to the front last night rolled into the depot. About 8,000 people were gathered at the station, and excitement was higher than at any time since the trouble began. When the train stopped the men who bore every evidence of actual service in the field of battle poured out of the coaches and formed in a line, through which their dead comrades were carried military style. The company formed with arms reversed and marched behind the re-mains of the dead volunteers to the court-Not until the arrival of this train was it possible to get a correct statement of the battle and the exciting incidents leading up to it. Gaut, a business man of this city, and one of the volunteers, was badly injured by falling over a ledge of DESCRIPTION OF THE BATTLE.

The battle commenced at 6:30 o'clock this morning and lasted nearly half an hour. Four of Colonel Woolford's soldiers, who were along with the Knoxville boys, were captured. They were soon retaken. The volunteers and 100 soldiers of the Second regiment reached Offutts, a small village four miles this side of Coal Creek, about 11 o'clock last night. After roughly discussing the situation and conferring by wire with Brigadier General Carnes it was decided to go at once to the relief of Fort Anderson. Major D. A. Carpenter, who soldiered in that vicinity during the war and who is thoroughly acquainted with the topography thoroughly acquainted with the topography of that country, took command of the men. They left Offutts about 2 o'clock and went across Walden Ridge by a circultous route, so as to reach Fort Anderson from a point farthest removed from the village of Coal Creek. The night was dark as pitch, and the loneliness of the road was degressing. The sides of Walden Ridge are depressing. The sides of Walden Ridge are very steep and are covered with huge boulders and ledges of sandstone. Over these obstructions the brave fellows, many of whom had never been in the mountains before, climbed and then descended. Their clothing was torn and their hands and faces were scratched by the brambles. Just after were scratched by the brambles. Just after they started down the mountain on the north side toward Fort Anderson the men were divided into squads under command of Captain W. L. Ledgerwood, General D. D. Anderson and Colonel S. L. Woolford peared and offered to pilot the regiment down the mountain. Without suspecting the troops followed them into a well-planned ambuscade. Ledgerwood's men were in front. At a point within a quarter of a mile of Fort Anderson the firing commenced from behind the great ledges of sandstone on a spur of the ridge overlooking the valley where the men were marching. The Stars and Stripes at Fort Anderson were in full view and the men were feeling relieved at the nest approach of fortifications and were joking with each other when bullets began whisting about their ears. Ledgerwood's men had passed the ambuscade before firing commenced and they received a volley of bullets in the back. Cary, Walthall, Givens and Heiskel were all in this party. The other companies faced about at once and opened fire on the ambuscade. As the firing became general men seemed to rise up from behind a yeary stump and the rise up from behind the great ledges of the switchmen's Strike.

Seeing that Carpenter was going rapidly in an opposite direction the four soldiers were released and allowed to return to their regiment. The regiment reached Offutts on their retreat about 10 o'clock thoroughly exhausted. They had eaten nothing since noon yesterday, and were hungry as wolves. They notified General Carnes that they were at his service if needed, and many plucky young fellows, thoroughly stirred up over the loss of three of their comrades, wanted to go to Coal Creek any way. General Carnes wired them he could manage Coal Creek, which is to the right, and they started around the country among farmhouses and ate their first meal in twenty-four house. A squad of picked men returned to the battle-field and brought the dead and wounded into Coal Creek under a flag of truce.

He says heavill never return to Coal Creek.

RATES TO THE WORLD'S FAIR,

A Passenger Agents' Committee Considering the Subject. &

Some time during the early par of next month the sub-committee, consisting of members of all the passenger associations in this country, will meet and make known what the rate will be. A well-informed passenger agent to-day expressed the opinion that the tickets to the World's Fair will be sold at the rate of a single fare and a third for the round

St. Petreusurec, August 19.—News has been received of the wrecking in the terrible storm at Nijni Novgorod of the steamer Gigorieuw and the loss of about thirty of the passengers and crew. The steamer was dashed about by the hurricane and found to be leaking badly. The report got among the passengers and crew that the vessel was sinking.

A large number rushed in a wild panie to the side of the steamer and some jump everboard without anything to keep them above water, while others seized chairs, tables and other articles that would float as life-preservers. The officers vainly tried to stop the panie, shouting that there was plenty of time to lower the boats. Many waited for the boats, but of those who leaped overboard about thirty were drowned. The others were taken ashore in safety. The steamer sank soon afterwards.

There is fully sixty miles of track to be grarded, together with the round-houses, fenair shops, freight sheds and depots.

When seen this morving concerning the possibility of the kindred organizations, such as the firemen and trainmen of the dilierent roads, taking a hand in the strike, F. F. Donovan, of the State board of mediation and arbitration, said: "No, I do not think they will. It is my opinion the strike will spread no further than it has, though the kindred organizations might as well have it out now, for it will be their turn next. I know the switchmen counted on the co-operation of the trainmen, but they are unwilling to come out, and as for the firemen striking, whatever they had of striking had been done. There is no out they are unwilling to come out, and as for the firemen striking, whatever they had of striking had been done. There is no fear that a strike will come from the engineers, for I believe all the roads have a three year contract with their engineers."

"How do you like the refusal of the roads to arbitrate."

"It was just as we expected. We did not suppose for a moment they would arbitrate the matter when we proposed it, and therefore we were not disappointed. The presence of so many troops has put a quietus on the strike, and why so many soldiers were sent here is a mystery to me." Chairman Purcell, of the board, also said that he filled no knowledge that there was going to be a sympathetic strike.

NO CHANGE AT HEADQUARTERS. ALBANY, N. It is that Knights of Labor from eastern places are here to take the positions eastern places are here to take the positions made vacant by the strike of the non-union switchmen, and the old hands who struck Monday night are falling over each other in their endeavors to be back in the employ or the New York Central road. Another interesting thing is that before to-morrow morning most all of the non-union switchmen who struck will be back at work. The Central announces that it intends to start its train east to-night. Not a Central start its train east to-night. Not a Central train has been sent out at night since Mon-day, and for the first time this week they will go east to-night.

Threatened With Personal Violence by an Indignant Crowd. Sr. Louis, August 19.-A special from Wichita, Kan., says quite a sensation was created on the old soldiers' reunion grounds last night by a controversy between Judge Botkin, of Steven county, and Congressman Jerry Simpson. In his speech Judge Botkin made a remark that there was a Kansan who had written of the people of Western Kansas in a letter to the American Watchman, saying that "the men are selling their honor, the women their virtue and the children becoming criminals and outcasts for bread.'

The audience demanded the name of the writer and Botkin answered Jerry Simpwriter and Botkin answered Jorry Simpson." Simpson was in the crowd and was repeatedly called for, but refused to come forward. At the close of the speaking Simpson accused Botkin of doing him an injustice, and said that the remark referred to was applied to the people of Boston and New York. This Botkin denied, and said he latter was written in response to a rethe latter was written in response to a re-quest for an article on the condition of his onstituents.

The Judge promised Simpson that he would secure the letter in full, and if he was wrong he would make public apology and if correct in his statement he would publish the letter and place it in the hands of every voter in the congressioned district. After a sharp exchange of words between Simpson and Botkin the latter said: "If you said this thing about the people of kansas you are disreputable and dishonor-shie."

The crowd was growing quite excited by this time and Simpson was threatened with personal violence.

Judge Botkin interfered and Simpson was taken away by his friends.

MacDonnell said that by means of money and personal influence he established a communication with the outside world and kept up a constant correspondence with his family. He occupied epondence with his family. He occupied his spare time in translating foreign litera-ture. His alster came to England in the summer with letters to the Duke of Norfolk and Archbishop Vaughan, and she worked incessantly on petitions for his release.
